

The map displays the Tannenberg region in Switzerland, characterized by a dense network of blue lines representing rivers and streams. The terrain is depicted in shades of green, indicating forested areas. Numerous place names are visible, including Wiesental, Sack, Kumberg, Bühl, Giessen, Chatzentöl, Cholplatz, Ruppe, Schochen, Althaus, Schläpli, Krin, Freckenhünd, Kapell, Trubenweg, Kalchegg, Weid, Waid, Furrenshaus, Zolgli, Steine, Sennenhaus, Unter Bogen, Bogen, Gipsegg, Spältrüti, Lachen, Matt, Ussermatt, Manze, Hintereich, Hochlandenberg, Schöpis, Rode, Hof Hinzberg, Ottenhub, Traube, Hinterauli, Vorderauli, Göss, Brenggau, Pfaffberg, Tannau, Sengi, Rosengarten, Waldweid, Lochweidli, Loch, Ghögg, Bolen, Strick, Eichböhl, Aegetswil, Käfer, Berg, Berghof, Güeterholz, and Freckenhünd. The map also shows several roads, including Forstetenstrasse, Chasbrunnenstrasse, and Trubenweg. The sampling points are distributed across the region, with a high concentration in the upper left corner, marked by a circled number 1. Other numbered locations include 2, 3, 4, and 5, each with a distinct color and shape. The points are color-coded: red (1), blue (2), purple (3), orange (4), and green (5). The map is credited to OpenStreetMap contributors.