

A map of the Fribourg region in Switzerland, showing 8 clusters of points. The points are colored based on their density, with a color gradient from blue (low density) to red (high density). The clusters are numbered 1 through 8. The map includes various geographical features such as rivers, roads, and place names. The clusters are distributed across the region, with some clusters being more concentrated than others.